Product-Specific Risks

You are exposed to Bonds, Debt Instruments & Fixed Income & Credit Risks

The value of bonds and debt instruments will fluctuate depending on market interest rates, the credit quality of the issuer and liquidity considerations. Investments may be adversely affected if any of the institutions with which money is deposited suffers insolvency or other financial difficulties (e.g. default). Credit risk arises from the uncertainty about the ultimate repayment of principal and interest of a bond or other debt instrument investments.

You are exposed to Equities Risk

The value of stocks may fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, in response to the activities and results of individual companies or because of general market and economic conditions or other events.

You are exposed to risks associated with the use of the SMART Model

The SMART model seeks to maintain the Underlying Fund's long term average annualised volatility within the range disclosed in its investment objective. There is no guarantee that the actual annualised volatility will be within those limits and may be higher than the target range. In targeting its volatility range, the Underlying Fund may not capture the full upside from rising markets as the target volatility model is designed to balance growth and volatility and would not result in an allocation of all assets to any single market.

You are exposed to risks associated with the extensive use of financial derivative instruments

The Underlying Fund may make extensive use of derivatives for investment purposes or use complex derivatives or strategies to meet the investment objectives of the Underlying Fund. The use of derivatives may give rise to liquidity risk, counterparty risk, volatility risk, valuations risk and over-the-counter transaction risk. The leverage element / component of a derivative can result in a loss significantly greater than the amount invested in the derivative by the Underlying Fund. In adverse situations, the Underlying Fund use of derivative instruments may become ineffective and the Underlying Fund may suffer significant losses.

You are exposed to Investment Grade Risk

The Underlying Fund's investments in investment grade debt securities involve credit risk and may be subject to ratings downgrades by the rating agencies in the period between their issuance and maturity, which may affect the Underlying Fund's NAV.

You are exposed to Emerging Markets Risks

Prices of emerging market securities may be more volatile than securities in more developed markets due to political and economic factors. This volatility may be exacerbated by legal, trading liquidity, settlement, transfer of securities and currency factors.

You are exposed to Real Estate Securities Risk

The Underlying Fund's investments in real estate securities are subject to substantially the same risks as direct investments in real estate. Real estate values fluctuate depending on factors such as local, regional and national economic environment, rental market demand, interest rates changes, as well as the management, organisation, skill and capital funding of the managers and operators of the underlying properties. When economy slows or if interest rates rise, mortgage and financing costs will increase and can affect the profitability and liquidity of properties in the real estate market. This will potentially lead to declines in property values and hence adversely affect the value of investor's investments.

You are exposed to Real Estate Investment Trusts ("REIT") Risk

The Underlying Fund may invest in REITS which are primarily investments in real estate and are generally less liquid. Limited liquidity may affect the ability of a REIT to vary its investment portfolio or liquidate part of its assets in response to changes in economic conditions, international securities markets, foreign exchange rates, interest rates, real estate market or other conditions. Heavy cash flow dependency, borrowers default risk, decline in the credit rating of the REIT and interest rates rise will potentially lead to a decline in the value of the investments.

You are exposed to Commodities Risk

Exposure to commodities may subject the Underlying Fund to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities. The value of commodity-linked derivative instruments may be affected by the overall market movements, commodity index volatility, changes in interest rates, or factors affecting a particular commodity industry or the production and trading of commodities, such as natural events, embargoes, tariffs and international economic, political and regulatory developments.
